

BioForward
— WISCONSIN

First Annual Biohealth Communication Competition

In this moment of mistrust and disinformation, it's important for researchers to step away from the bench and tell their stories to the communities that will benefit from their work.

However, presenting your science to the general public is not easy, so we want to reward your skills and promote your hard work!

BioForward, Wisconsin's voice for the Biohealth industry, is holding a competition to find and celebrate the Wisconsin grad students, med students, and postdocs who excel at science communications.

Gain Valuable Experience!
Share your Research!
Win Cash Prizes!

gettyimages.com - 18796736

Prepare a 3-minute video by September 17th discussing your work for a general audience for a chance to win a prize and give your presentation live at this year's Biohealth Summit (10/7) in Madison.

For full details, please send an email with "Communication" in the Subject Line to mharrison@bioforward.org